New Finance Director Starts Position with City

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, CO – The City of Glenwood Springs is pleased to welcome Steve Boyd as the City’s new Finance Director. Boyd, who is originally from the area and graduated from Glenwood Springs High School in 1987, started his position with the City on March 1, 2017.

His experience includes 20 years in the investment banking and corporate finance fields, including working as the Executive Vice President for Private Equity Capital Partners and Director of Finance for the Denver-based Quiznos Corporation, and 8 years working in purchasing for Colorado Mountain College. In 2009, he moved back to Glenwood Springs for a position at Colorado Mountain College in the Business Office. There he was responsible for negotiating and managing college-wide vendor agreements, executing grants and contracts, and managing the purchasing and accounts payable departments. He also teaches Finance and Economics at CMC.

He holds a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration from University of Northern Colorado in Greeley and a Master of Business Administration in Finance from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania.

“I love the City of Glenwood Springs. Having an opportunity to contribute to its ongoing development is just too good to pass up, especially at this exciting time,” Boyd said. “Leaving CMC was a difficult decision. The college’s star is on the rise, the leadership team is exceptional and it’s a phenomenal place to work.”
